The Federal Reserve Board is preparing to begin its second annual meeting in late 2013. For the first time in almost 20 years, the next meeting, held in March 2013, will include one of the most powerful Fed officials in US history. Robert Steinberg, who held the head of the Fed since 2008 and headed its policies committee while Obama was President, will lead a session of monetary policy discussion for Congress on Wednesday. The meeting will be Steinberg's first in his new role in three years and he will also represent the Federal Reserve's central bank in front of the U.S. Congress. It is also the second time that the Fed Board in January will have its first meeting..
